

TRIBUTE TO LEGENDARY BUSHMAN MALCOLM DOUGLAS 1941 - 2010

In 1964, 23 year old Malcolm Douglas set off with a mate on a trip around Australia. As they travelled and explored, they filmed their adventures, later turning them into documentaries which have been shown to audiences world-wide. Since his initial film, Malcolm has produced more than 50 documentaries and films for Australian television.

Malcolm was the original "crocodile hunter" who opened the Broome Crocodile Park in 1983; which has become popular for tourists all over the world. Malcolm was a passionate conservationist, starting up the Kimberley Bilby rescue organisation and working towards increasing numbers of this almost-extinct Aussie animal.

Malcolm was killed in an accident at the Broome Crocodile Park in September 2010.

The Management and Staff of Engel extend their deepest sympathy to the Douglas family and all involved with the Broome Crocodile Park.

A passionate man taken before his work was complete.

Malcolm we will continue to fight for the preservation of your beloved Bilby in whatever capacity we are able.

Thanks for the memories. R.I.P.
